What was the impact of Covid-19 and lockdown on your business? Covid-19 has had a positive and negative impact on my business. The positive impact was that it gave us the opportunity to produce cloth masks however, there was a negative impact whereby people stopped buying our other products such as school uniforms and designer clothes.

What lessons did you learn? As a leader, I learnt that good communication is very important when running a business. There were times where I was forced to sit down and communicate with my employees, and I had to use my emotional intelligence to show them that times are hard but we shall rise again.

Let's end 2020 on a high

This was the toughest of tough years. We need to honour the victories, no matter how small.

Some of you started a BackaBusiness campaign; maybe you Shifted Gears; maybe you hung in by sheer grit or lady luck smiled on you. We asked our winners and this is what they had to say...

Airboat Afrika

Chris Grosch

www.airboatafrika.com

What was the impact of Covid-19 and lockdown on your business? Lockdown brought our revenue to zero until August. The ban on inter-provincial travel meant our core markets (Gauteng: Joburg and Pretoria) couldn't get to us anymore in Harties

What lessons did you learn?

There's always room to shift gears, reprioritise, re-strategise and modernise.

Do you have any tips for other small businesses? Always keep an open mind - never discard ideas outright, rather keep notes to refer back to in times of stress.

"You need to believe in yourself and believe that you can. If you fail you get up, you show up and you continue, possibly in another direction but you do forge on. I have also realised that I need to make sure that I am the best leader I can be in terms of the people I work with, and sometimes this means that I must change something. I believe in the empowerment of people in order for each person to become the best versions of themselves."
